DISCUSS PLANS TO WIDEN SIDEWALKS AT COUNTY LINE

Last Monday evening the regular meeting of the City Council was held at the City Hall, Mayor H. H. Smith presiding. Councilman Henry Sundermann acted as city clerk in the absence of City Clerk B. C. Ross, who is enjoying his annual vacation.

The street committee reported a meeting with some of the property owners at the county line, in an endeavor to have the buildings moved back and the sidewalks made the proper width. Those whose improvements encroach on the sidewalk claim to be protected by title insurance, so the matter will very likely have to be settled in the courts.

The building committee reported the work of remodeling the front of the City Hall had been started and was progressing satisfactorily, and that work was to be started on the storage pump house very soon.

The city attorney reported that the Veterans' Welfare Board had sent him certificates of title covering all property for which exemption from taxes was claimed.

The California League of Municipalities drew the Council's attention to Section 1714½ of the Civil Code, effective August 14, 1929, which makes a city liable in damage for injuries caused by automobiles owned by the city or used for public business. This matter was referred to the city attorney.

A letter was received from A. Lang, secretary of the Board of Fire Commissioners, stating that Mr. H. Hutchings was dropped from the membership roll of Company No. 3, and Mr. Joseph Longo, 32 Partridge Lane, was initiated into the ranks of Company No. 5 as a fireman.

MERCHANTS DEFEAT REDWOOD CITY TEAM

With Dick Randall pitching shutout ball for seven innings, last Sunday, the Daly City Merchants defeated Redwood City Y. M. I. at Jefferson Union high school grounds. Retig and Joe Drucker turned in two fast double plays. With J. Keane back on third base the Merchants now boast of a very fast infield. Joe Drucker, who has always been a tower of strength to the Merchants on the field, has developed into a hard and timely hitter in the last four or five games. The veteran M. Reardon was behind the bat for the Merchants last Sunday and turned in a good game. Next Sunday, August 18, the Merchants will play Palo Alto Base Hospital at Palo Alto.

Following is the box score for last Sunday's game:

A MOUNTAIN FISHING TRIP AND A HORSEBACK RIDE

Mayor H. H. Smith, Councilman A. J. Dalton and John Parsons motored to the High Sierras on Thursday of last week in search of the elusive trout, returning last Monday, reporting a most successful outing.

Early Friday morning the fishermen left their camp for an enjoyable (?) horseback ride of eight miles to a lake, where they made a record catch of large-sized speckled beauties. The following morning, although it is said some of the members of the party rather regretted the necessity of again displaying their horsemanship, a trip of nine miles was made to the north fork of the San Joaquin river, where they caught the limit. This was followed on Sunday by an eleven mile ride, again on horseback, to Fernandez creek, where at an elevation of 11,000 feet they again made a wonderful catch.

And while the trio of fishermen admit they had some wonderful fishing, they will long remember those three days of horseback riding.

INTERESTING VISIT TO VACATION LAND

Edward Lorentzen, of Templeton avenue, and John Alden, formerly of Daly City, returned home last Friday after a delightful two weeks vacation spent in Northern California. On the last day of their outing they were breakfast guests at the Morby ranch at Ukiah, luncheon guests at the Albertz ranch at Cloverdale, and enjoyed dinner at the home of Father McClave, in Cloverdale, who showed his ability as a cook by the tempting dishes he served.

Following is an interesting account of the trip, written by Messrs. Lorentzen and Alden:

Vacation time. The last day of work behind; the first vacation day ahead. Last details attended to, last minute wondering if anything has been forgotten.

Off at last, troubled at first by thoughts of things now known to have been forgotten in the last minute rush, Gradually, however, the regret engendered by these trivialities wears away. Who can long be regretful when western mountains begin to appear, growing more beautiful with each passing moment. Fears fade, enthusiasm begins to bubble and percolate like an electric coffee pot. As it gets warmer, there commences a process of loosening and discarding excess clothing; of leaning back on the cushioned seats and just feeling good.

Eventually the fresh country air forces its way through the prevalent gasoline fumes of the highway, and one adds the sense of smell to the sight of green things growing. One even forgets to give more than an occasional growl to the motorist who insists on taking his half of the road, and taking that half from the middle.

Then comes the narrow, winding roads, mountain roads which wind and twist up and down, but mostly up. About this time comes that reflective state when one wonders if there is going to be room enough to pass the next car. A look at the beautiful scenery and then a feeling of relief as another car goes by without bumping yours off the road. In this connection, it seems that the favorite mountain yell, call, or what have you, is: "Get over there, you big sap."

Natives are easily recognized; they pass you without slowing down to five miles per hour. Natives call these roads highways, but to the city dweller they seem more like goat trails. At that, the main complaint is due to their narrowness. They are paved and many of the turns and curves are banked and graded, but if one drove past another car as fast and as close in the city as they do on these mountain roads, the first policeman encountered would arrest said party for reckless driving and then ask to smell his breath.

After the first hour or so the heart seems to get down where it belongs, and the hirsute adornment of the cranium ceases to stand on end. Then one begins to pity the evident trepidation of the poor city drivers one meets on the road.

It is only when one gets out on the highways of Northern California that one realizes the widespread fame of our northern wonderland. Machines from all over the country may be seen, here a number of middle western college boys in a Model T Ford, there an expensive limousine from New York with a trailer of camp equipment running into four figures for value.

What claim has this country to fame? Come, we shall see for ourselves. Here on the left and right of us is the Italian-Swiss Colony; here grew the vineyards that produced world famous wines. Fertile land, this, and still capable of even greater development. Here, a little farther along the road, is the famous old Albertz ranch. Set far back from the highway is the ranch house, a massive old-time structure evidently conceived by a man with original ideas who knew what he wanted. Back there, beyond the ranch house, where you see those big barns and sheds, is the remains of a once great winery. There, going and gone to ruin, is thousands of dollars worth of wine-making equipment, now of no further use. Notice the orchards. We are getting close to a real fruit country. Here we are in Cloverdale. Stop. Give the motor a chance to cool. Fill the radiator. Fill the gas tank. Gasoline is more expensive beyond here.

Now we come to a real mountain climb, a climb that winds and twists and turns until one believes that the road muust have been laid in the trail of some giant serpent, and that serpent bound nowhere in particular, but up, always up. See those canyons far below! See those green pines, the red truunks of the manzanita and the strange rock formations.

Now we are over the crest, going down into another fertile land, picturesque and beautifuul. Hopland. That road there leads over into Lake

JEFFERSON HIGH REOPENS MONDAY

Jefferson Union high school will open for the new term on next Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

As the new program was arranged before the close of school preceding vacation, and registration in the several classes was completed, the work in the several departments will begin promptly. All that remains to be done is for the students to get their student body and text book cards. This will be attended to first of all on Monday morning, so that text books may be distributed promptly and lessons assigned without delay.

Principal Ferguson urges that this year, more than ever, it is necessary for every prospective students to be present on the first day. The number of new students will be much larger than on any other previous year, he says, and the demand for places in the different departments is consequently greater. Especially is this the case in the science courses and in auto mechanics. The rule of "first come first served" has to be adhered to strictly.

Another reason for the prompt attendance on the first day of school is that lessons will be assigned promptly and those who enter late will be behind in their work. "Late beginners seldom catch up," Mr. Ferguson says.

There will be three new teachers on the high school faculty this year, All come highly recommended for the work they are to do.

Miss Catherine McKeown will teach in the English department. She was a substitute teacher last year in Jefferson and made a good record.

Miss Bertha Holtz will be in charge of girls' physical education and music. She has had several years of successful experience in this line of work in California.

Mr. Albert Biaggini will have charge of all the physical education activities for boys. He has an enviable record as an athlete in college, and comes with the highest recommendations from the university professors under whom he worked. He is an all round athlete and qualified to coach each branch of athletics in the high school.

SERVICES RESUMED AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

Services have been resumed at the Methodist church after being discontinued for the month of July. The Sunday school has been active all the summer, being directed by Miss Dorothy Ingersoll, sperintendent, assisted by Miss Ann Tromborg.

Next Sunday evening the Epworth League will meet at 6:30 o'clock, followed by the preaching service at 7:30 o'clock, when the pastor, Rev. George Woodall, will preach a sermon on the subject, "The Bible—What We Need to Know About It to be Saved."

Following the service there will be a meeting of the congregation to elect a lay delegate to represent the church at the annaul conference sesison of the California Conference, which will convene in the First Church, Oakland, September 10.

DEATH CAR DRIVER CONVICTED BY JURY

Carl Flannigan, former attendant at the United States Veteran's hospital, Menlo Park, awaits sentence to San Quentin on a charge of manslaughter, following his conviction late Monday in the superior court at Redwood City as driver of a car which crashed into another machine at Atherton, June 26, killing Mrs. Henry J. Crocker and Mrs. Louis T. Monteagle, members of two of California's most prominent families. It is understood Flannigan will seek probation.

JEFFERSON WINS BY STAGING RALLY

The Jefferson All Stars came from behind and staged a nine run rally in the fifth inning to defeat the Portola Athletic Club, 17 to 6, at University Park, last Sunday, in a six inning game.

The local team drove three Portola pitchers from the mound, while Gene Keagle, their chucker, allowed ten hits and struck out eight batters.

C. Aiello was the All Stars' biggest batting threat. He collected three hits in four times at bat and scored three runs. E. Devencenzi, the leading hitter of the team, garnered a pair of singles out of three trips to the plate to retain his position.

The All Stars expected a close game when they found out who they were booked to play, as their opponents had previously defeated some fast teams. The result was that they played a little erratic at first, but they soon settled down and proceeded to trounce their rivals. Following is the box score:

Vic Barskey, manager of the Jefferson All Stars, announced that he would give a gold baseball to the most valuable player on the team, at a business meeting held August 7. The contest for this award started last Sunday and will continue for two months. The best all around player will be judged by his batting average, fielding ability and spirit shown.

"This should introduce more fight and in every way improve the playing of the team. If it does, that is all I hope for," said Barskey.

CROCKER'S ANNUAL PICNIC TO BE HELD NEXT SUNDAY

Members of Crocker Lodge No. 454, F. & A. M., their families and friends will journey to Little Oak Cove Park, near San Mateo, next Sunday, August 18, for their annual picnic outing.

The committee in charge has made all arrangements for a program of sports and entertainment which it is expected will be enjoyed by the largest crowd ever to attend a Crocker Lodge picnic.

The caravan of pleasure seekers will leave the top of the hill at 8:30 Sunday morning for the picnic grounds, in order that there may be plenty of time for the enjoyment of the day's program.

B. Y. P. U. MEETS IN SUNNYVALE

There will be no Young Peoples' meeting at Calvary Mission this Sunday evening, as we are going to Sunnyvale to return a visit made by the Young People of the Sunnyvale Baptist church. We in turn invite you to come with us, if you can, and desire to. You are welcome. We will leave here to arrive there at 7 p. m.

ODDS AND ENDS OF WEEK'S NEWS

A "meanest thief" who stole $1.50 in pennies and broke open a boy's bank to get $7.35, is being sought by San Mateo police.

For the first time in its history, Berkeley has become a "millionaire." The city's bank balance at the close of the fiscal year was $1,137,869.

Official opening ceremonies for the old customs house museum, recently established in Monterey, have been postponed for another six months.

Five directors to form the first board of the new Belmont county water district were elected by citizens of Belmont and the surrounding area included in the district at a special election last Friday.

Three bids for a branch of the Burlingame postoffice on Broadway were rejected by Postal Inspector E. B. Smith, San Francisco, who granted an extension until September 1 for further bids.

Volney Chadwick, Oakland aviator, was killed at Morgan Hill Saturday afternoon, while piloting a plane rented earlier in the day from the Norman Aircraft company at Mills Field. Chadwick crashed 1,000 feet to his death when a wing collapsed.

A thorough investigation into both theories that Hugo Darm, San Mateo blacksmith, was a suicide or met foul play, was recommended Friday night by a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of the man who was found injured at the base of a cliff at Tunitas a week previous.

The assessed valuation of real property in South San Francisco has been tentatively fixed at $6,725,230 by the city assessor. There will probably be some adjustments made on this valuation by the board of equalization.

Damage amounting to about $1,000 was done to the J. G. Farrell cottage at Atherton by fire originating from an electric flatiron.

Quarantine on all clam beds in San Mateo county, as well as four other counties in the bay district, will be strictly enforced, declares Dr. Hassler of the State Board of Health. No further cases of poisoning from clams and mussels have been reported.

For the fourth time within a year telephone company officials and the sheriff's office have joined in a search for vandals who make a hobby of clipping the telephone wires between Monterey and Salinas. Twice last week the Monterey peninsula was cut off from outside communication as a result of the activities of wire cutters.

Officials of the board of fire underwriters and the arson board are investigating an incendiary fire which damaged a small house at University avenue and Middlefield road, Menlo Park.

As a result of driving down the wrong lane after a turn into the Great highway along the beach in San Francisco last Sunday, seven persons, several of them from San Mateo, are under hospital care.

Unpaid street improvement assessments, passed by the town of San Caros in 1927 for work in the Municipal Property Company's Devonshire tract, formed the basis for 239 suits for the foreclosure of liens filed in Superior Court at Redwood City by Attorneys Jones and Balaam of Oakland for LeRoy Balaam, plaintiff.

Ben Race. pioneer hotelman of San Mateo county and one of the most pictuuresque figures of early Peninsula history, died last Monday at his home in Portola. Race had been in business on the Peninsula for more than thirty years. He was a native of Wisconsin, 55 years old.

Increase of 6 per cent in the San Mateo public grammar school registration and 13 per cent in the total of Burlingame were announced Tuesday morning by school authorities.

"THE GREATEST BOOK IN THE WORLD," THEME OF PASTOR

"Is the Bible a Message From God?" will be the theme of a discourse in Grace Presbyterian church next Sunday. Rev. John R. Stevenson will state some of the wonderfully striking things about this Book of Books. He will give an account of its history, its composition, its contents and its accomplishments. The program will be supported by music from Miss Madie Irons, Miss Mildred Roof, and Miss Mildred Swan, and Mr. Davis will render a Hawaiian guitar solo.

BRIDGE BACKER TO ABANDON PROJECT

Informal notice that the application for a franchise to construct a bay bridge at Candlestick Point will not be made was served by John E. Manders, San Francisco attorney, on the San Mateo County board of supervisors at the regular meeting last Monday in Redwood City.

The application was to be made at an adjourned meeting of the board called for that purpose on Wednesday of this week.

Bayford Way, a small street at Beresford, was declared abandoned as a public road. All of the former protestants withdrew their protests.

One-forth of one per cent on the first $5,000 worth of taxes collected in Menlo Park is the rate the county will charge for the collecting services it was decided through a resolution.

The telephone company will be notified that all bills for telephone service in the traffic bureau must be sent to the state department of motor vehicles after August 14, instead of submitting them to the county.

Two easements for a sewer right-of-way near Redwood City were accepted, one from the Pacific Gas & Electric company and the other from the Prattlow Preserving company.

The sum of $3,800 was appropriated for equipment and maintenance of the Half Moon Bay fire district for the coming fiscal year.

The California State Fair association announced, in a letter, that the "San Mateo county typical tree," sent to represent this county at the fair, had died. Another one should be sent at an earlier date next year. This was referred to A. W. Tate, county horticultural commissioner.

THE EAGLES NEST

At the regular weekly meeting of the Fraternal Order of Eagles a good attendance was had. The sick committee reported all ailing members were improving and on the road to recovery. The old age pension committee gave a detailed account of the manner of procedure for applying for the pension. The booster committee reported that there would be something of special interest for the last meeting of every month. Twelve candidates were voted on and approved.

On Thursday evening a class of twenty-five will be initiated and a delegation from all the Aeries in the county will be present.

The social committee has promised something that will "tickle the palate," and we know they haven't failed in the past.

On Thursday, August 22, the combined Aeries of the county will meet in Daly City. It promises to be a banner meeting for Eagledom in San Mateo county. Each member of Colma-Vista Grande Aerie should be in attendance. A special entertainment of local and professional talent has been arranged, and a good time is promised for all. As usual, the social committee will have charge of the "eats." Nuf sed.

Can Eagles answer these questions?

Does the average man join a club for what he can get out of it, or does he become a member in order that he might co-operate in the work that club is doing?

What is it that makes a man leave a comfortable chair, a good book, congenial friends, loved ones, and start for that club on meeting nights? Is it because he thinks the time invested will reap dividends? In what form does that dividend take?

Does a member join a club to get new ideas, or is he seeking a way to give expression to some of his ideas?

Is it the social side of the club?

The answer to all these questions is "Fellowship." Man is a social being. He craves companionship, whether it be the bird on an isolated island, or the crowded halls of clubs.

Men need "Fellowship" that is emphasized in club life. It is the coordination of efforts and ideas and the congenial atmosphere of united ideas. Men cannot work for their highest ideals or serve the grandest convictions without this rainbow of Fellowship.

In every man there hides the noblest spring of excellence, and only in Fellowship does this trembling impulse receive encouragement and support.

Fellowship inspires us to create a more ideal character. Can a club live without character? Can you?

Remove Fellowship from the Eagles and what have you?

This is just a thought for you, and we ask again: Are you making use of the opportuunity that is yours? Do you attend meetings and acquire that Fellowship that is the foundation from which so many virtues flow?

SUMMONS

No. 16094.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of San Mateo, and the complaint filed in the office of the County Clerk of said County.

In the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of San Mateo.

ANGELO ARMANINO, Plaintiff, vs. HENRY E. LESZOZYNSKY, and also all other persons unknown claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiff's ownership or any cloud upon plaintiff's title thereto, Defendant.

ANNOUNCES NEW LABOR MEASURES

Walter G. Mathewson, State Labor Commissioner, has announced some of the new labor measures which became effective on August 15, 1929, Some of the major changes in the laws, according to his summary, are as follows:

1. An employer who defrauds an employee of wages in excess of $200 is clearly guilty of a felony.
2. An employer who issues a pay check which is not actually paid on presentation to the bank is guilty of a misdemeanor.
3. Employers, subject to the eight hour law for women workers, must keep accurate records of the actual hours worked by all female employees.
4. Employers engaged on public works must keep accurate records of the actual hours worked by all their employees.
5. Barber shops employing women are subject to the eight hour law for women.
6. Employers msut not give homework to women employees which would involve their working more than eight hours in one day.
7. Employers must not permit women employees to carry boxes or other objects weighing in excess of 50 pounds, or to carry trays weighing more than 10 pounds up or down stairs that rise more than five feet.
8. Employers who are the actual recipients of the tips or gratuities given to the employees must post conspicuous signs to that effect.
9. Employers in agricultural work must not employ children under school age when the public schools are in session.
10. Employers who use cash bond moneys of their employees in their business or fail to keep same in seperate trust funds are guilty of theft.
11. An employer cannot compel employees or applicants for employment to be photographed or fingerprinted by any person or association which desires the photograph or fingerprint for the purpose of furnishing same to any other employer which could be used to the detriment of the employees.
12. Building and construction contractors and subcontractors must secure state licenses and must comply with the state labor laws under penalty of having their licenses revoked.
13. Farm labor contractors and farm labor agencies must be bonded and secure state employement agency licenses.
14 Employment agencies which fail to return deposits or fees of unsuccessful applicants for employment within forty-eight hours are liable for double the amount of the deposits or fees.

According to Commisisoner Mathewson, pamphlets containing the full texts of these labor laws will soon be available for distribution.

NOTES OF INTEREST FROM ALL CORNERS

For eight years Mrs. Dora Wilson has been a charity worker at Bakersfield, Calif., and during that time has baked 104,460 cookies.

Martha Well of Salisbury, Md., was unable to talk for two years. After a violent fit of coughing she found that her voice had returned.

Mrs. Viola Rasor of Chicago asked for a divorce on charges of cruelty declaring that her husband found amusement in making her dance to the tune of pistol shots at her feet.

When Miss Lois Parchman of Chicago refused to tell bandits the hiding place of her jewels, they tortured her with glowing cigarettes until she fainted.

Flying a box kite as big as himself from the room of a factory, Milton Fisher, 12, of Brooklyn toppled backward from the roof, but the kite acted as a parachute and dropped him gently to the ground.

After writing his obituary notice and addressing it to the newspapers, Joseph Boulasger, 65, of Nashua, N. H., hanged himself.

Friends affixed to the bridal car of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bowman of Chicago an additional license plate reading "WE. R 1."

F. R. West, Labor member of Parliment, will use a bicycle instead of an auto for his daily trip to the House of Commons.

Mrs. Mary Loxen of Belfast admitted she had thrown hot ashes on her husband when he refused to get up in the morning.

Harry Hill and Ada Robinson of Belfast tied their hands together to drown, but found the water too cold and abandoned their death pact.

Otto Braun of Vienna, who broke the world record for continuous piano playing, trained for the endurance feat on vegetables only.

Joshua Williams, professional begger in London, bequeathed an estate of $260,000, of which $25,000 was given to charity.

Philip Harris of Glasgow was granted a divorce on presenting 500 love letters his wife received from other men.

For the first time on record a wife was fined in Berlin for hitting her husband over the head with a beerglass.

When James Colvey of St Louis was summoned for failure to support his family, he said he was unable to work because he suffered from "neurasthritus."

John Jacobs of Bloomfield N. J., saved 63,000 pennies in 4 years and bought a new automobile.

Adolph Hart of Philadelphia, sued for breach of promise, declared he had forgotten his betrothal, which was entered into before he was of age.

According to Rev. E. L. Seavern of London, marriage is a wonderful school, teaching self-control, discipline and unselfishness.

When arrested for burglary Arnold Winters of Glasgow posed as a victim of aphasia, but physicians found he was shamming.

A woman who lived in California has returned to the street car company in Bristol, Eng., some money she found in a coach 25 years ago.

Trying to make peace between James Marhon and his family, George Crevett of Chicago was pushed off the roof and every bone in his body was broken.

Mrs. J. T. Rillick's canary broke its leg in the cage, but a Chicago physician fixed it up with splints.

A pet horse in Columbus, Ind., had the habit of picking up and holding objects in its mouth, and while so holding an open knife nearly severed the finger of David Butler, 12, when he reached for it.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

By awarding a contract for a new bridge the San Jose city council provided a new arterial for San Jose linking Taylor and Polhemus streets.

Charles B. Hamilton, chain hotel operator, has sold his lease on the New Hotel Carquinez to the Richmond Community Hotel Corporation, owners of the property, it has been announced.

Howard H. Wonacott, Fort Bragg photographer, has one of the largest trout farms in California. Wonacott said that present indications point to the fact that he soon will have $1,000,000 trout swimming around in his pond.

A new county hospital for Tehama county was recommended by Dr Charles W. Moots, hospital representative and inspector for the American College of Surgeons, following an inspection of the present building.

At a special meeting of the Community Council and other local organizations, plans were completed for a fiesta in September. The 49ers' fiesta and barbecue will replace the annual Marin county fair.

Tax reductions are in prospect for Red Bluff and Tehama county tax payers this year, due ot tentative reductions made in county and city budgets. The Board of Supervisors has slashed from $2.16 to $1.94, and the Red Bluff city trustees have reduced the city rate from $1.95 to $1.73.

County Superintendent of Schools G. P. Morgan announced Sonora county will receive $48,080.28 for its elementary schools, and $13,184.20 for its high schools from the state for the coming year. The county must provide an equal sum for the elementary schools and double the sum for the high schools.

The Northern Pacific Railway is considering plans for the operation of a system of motor trucks and busses in territory along its route between St. Paul, Minn., and the Pacific Coast, according to a recent report. B. W. Scandrett, executive vice president, said that a survey of conditions has been made, but no decision has been reached.

The Sawyer Tanning Company of Napa has received and order from Egypt for a large shipment of patent leather. Recently the company made a large shipment of its patent product to Brazil. Since the company has began the manufacture of patent leather a few years ago it has shipped to nearly every civilized country in the world.

Final approval of plans for the creation of a Tulare Lake basin water storage district, which will construct a reservoir in the old lake bed, was given when the adjustment board, appointed by the state engineer, met at Hanford. It gave its sanction to an assessment figure of $1,608,434.85 on the 180,000 acres of land which make up the district.

Butte county supervisors have set aside $10,000 for the improvement of Feather Falls as a state park. The falls have been taken off the market by the federal government and will be developed as a public park. The sum of $3500 will be used to purchase additional acreage at the park, and the balance will be used to improve the falls. The state will match the $10,000 improvement funds.

Justice has moved to the front lines with the state's fire fighters, it appears with reports of seventy-three arrests and fifty-two convictions as the result of fire law violations this season. While but two jail sentences have been imposed, $1262 in fines has been collected, $2,170 in damages to owners of burned property paid and $690 suppression costs met by violators, State Forester M. B. Pratt reported. Cigarettes and camp fires and burning without permit are the three major violations involved.

Material changes must be made in plans for a projected flood control dam on the Calaveras river proposed for construction by the city of Stockton, the State Department of Enginers informed Stockton city officials. The dam, for which excavations near Valley Springs have been suspended, must be constructed in compliance with the California Dam Regulation Act that goes into effect August 15, stated.

When one community has water and a neighbor hasn't and stands much in need of water, the possessor should be willing to give relief and not quibble about his rights. That is the attitude taken by Attorney General U. S. Webb in an opinion rendered to Henry S. Lyon, district attorney of Eldorado county, with reference to a resolution passed by the Board of Supervisors of that county protesting against the pumping of water from Lake Tahoe to relieve the water shortage in Nevada. Webb calls attention to the fact that the pumping would be but a temporary expedient and that it would lower the water in the lake not more than three inches.

Construction of twenty-four new homes at Napa in the last six months has set a record in home-building activities and kept contractors more than ordinarily busy. About $100,000 has been spent on new dwellings and garages, city figures show.

Announcement has been made of the merger of the Mother Lode National Bank of Sonora and the Jamestown National Bank, the former taking over the deposits and assets of the latter, said to amount to over $600,000. There will be no change in directors of the Sonora institution.

OFFERS $100,000 FOR GO WITH INVERSHIN

Owner of Reigh Count Desires Another Chance.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hertz have returned from England and their horse, Reigh Count, winner of the Coronation Cup and second in the Ascot Gold Cup, will follow shortly.

They are so keen for another meeting with Invershin, which beat their idol for the Gold Cup, that Hertz said that he would personally add $100,000 to the $100,000 which the American National Jockey club will offer for an international race at Arlington park next year, if Sir Reid Walker will send his champion to this country. The race would be under the same conditions as the Ascot Gold Cup and at the same distance—two miles and a half. He added:

"If the leading European owners show a desire to compete, Reigh Count will be trained for this one race next year. If the race does not materialize the horse, now four years old, will be retired to the stud without racing again at our home, Leona farms, Cary, Ill., and bred to 20 mares next spring.

"While we have 40 mares of our own, we do not propose to make a private stallion of Reigh Count. We feel that the American racing world has an interest in him with us, for which reason he will be bred to some mares outside of our own. Already we have had three requests in England to send mares to Reigh Count."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

A LONG BEAK

A fairy had come to call on a Toucan bird. She wanted the Toucan bird to tell her about himself. She had asked him why he was so queer and he answered her:

"I Am Given That Name."

"You see, the trouble is I can't tell you why I'm queer, when I don't think I am."

"Perhaps you will answer my questions then," said the Fairy.

"That I will be charmed to do," said the Toucan bird.

"Why do you shoot your head way out as you fly about? It seems as though your neck were so much longer than it is, and no one can think of your body when you shoot your head out so very far.

"Often I've thought maybe you hadn't a body as all I've noticed is your head.

"Perhaps not so much your head as your long beak. It's such a very, very long beak.

"Is that why you have the name of Toucan?"

"No," said the Toucan bird, "I am given that name, and all my family have the same name because of our shrill voices and queer cries.

"And if you want to know more about us we live in a country far, far south.

"We make our nests in holes.

"Does that interest you?"

"Yes," said the Fairy, "it certainly does. But still I must know why you put your head forward and stick your bill so far out when you are flying about.

"That is what makes you look so queer—that, and the fact that you have such a long bill."

"I will tell you," said the Toucan bird.

"You see it's always well to have one's beak ahead. Then we won't miss anything good to eat.

"Suppose we walked or flew backwards. Then our tails would always arrive first and maybe by the time our beaks got there, nothing would be left to eat."

"Are you so fond of food, then?" asked the Fairy.

"We like it—but that is not the only reason."

"Tell me some more," said the Fairy.

"We see with our heads."

"Don't you see with your eyes?" asked the Fairy.

"Of course, of course," said the Toucan bird. "But our eyes are in our heads.

"Tell Me Some More."

"We can't shove our eyes ahead of us—but we can shove our heads and our eyes go too!

"Isn't that a fine reason?

"We see everything so quickly in this way."

"It's a splendid reason," said the Fairy, "and one that I had never thought of before."

"And," added the Toucan bird, "our bodies always follow—but it's with our eyes that we see and with our beaks that we eat.

"So we hurry with our heads and our bodies come along after—not much after, though!"

And as the fairy watched the Toucan bird flying around shooting his head out in such a queer way she thought of is excellent reasons for doing so.

Veteran Placer Miner Picks Up Big Nugget

John E. Perrett, veteran prospector and placer miner, struck it lucky in Potato creek, west of Spearfish, S. D., when he found a ten-ounce gold nugget, valued at $250. The nugget, says the Omaha World Herald, is more than four inches long, about two inches wide and almost half an inch thick. For its size, it is said to be the purest one ever unearthed in the Black hills. A few finds like this would give a prospector more than a grub stake for his year's work, Perrett says. Mr. Perrett has been a resident of the Black hills for more than 46 years, and he has prospected more or less during that time. His present claim is located on Potato creek, where he has lived for the last 19 years. Potato creek has yielded many gold nuggets in the past, but it is doubtful if any has equaled this latest find.

Contrary to the general opinion, says Mr. Perrett, a placer miner or prospector does not depend for his grub stake and wages only on the gold he finds, but he also washes out such valuable metals as tin, tantulum, columbine, copper, tungsten, shelite and mica.

Too Humble

"We farmers are humble, but we're not as humble as some of these politicians seem to think."

George L. Quackenbush, the millionaire farmer of Virginia, was talking in Richmond about the farmer's hard luck and his demand for government aid.

"Yes, we're humble," he went on, "but we're not like little Willie.

"'Where are you going, Joe?' little Willie asked his friend.

"'Down to the drug store,' says Joe 'to get an ice cream soda.'

"Little Willie looked up at Joe wistfully and said:

"'Say, Joe, can I come and watch ye?'"

Seek "Old Maid" Insurance

Getting insured for almost any contingency is becoming a fad in Europe. The latest idea, but one which the insurance companies have not accepted, is insuring women against failure to secure a husband. Even this may come, for inquiries have been made both in Paris and London for policies of this type. A London company recently insured a glass eye for a woman. She pays a premium of $1.85 a year, and if anything happens to her glass optic she receives $15.75. FARM RELIEF PLANS

While the plan of the Federal Farm Board are still in the making, some indication of the methods to be pursued have been disclosed during the last two weeks which are of interest to farmers, as well as to the general public.

In the first place, it has been made plain that the funds authorized for farm relief will be loaned only to co-operative marketing organizations formed by the farmers themselves, with the moral support and advice of the Farm Board.

Even these organizations will be expected to try to finance themselves through regular banking channels when it is possible to do so at reasonable interest rates, before applying to the board for loans.

It is also evident that the board will expect the existing farm organizations to lay aside their differences, where differences exist, and co-operate with each other in the marketing of any certain commodity before seeking federal loans.

In other words, it does not seem likely that the various existing farm bodies, such as the Farm Bureau Federation, National Grange, Farmers Union and others, will be recognized as such for loan purposes, but that where these organizations operate in the same territory they must co-operate so far as marketing is concerned.

One trouble with organized farming in the past has been that there have been several different national organizations, often working at cross purposes, while business and industry have generally had a single national organization to represent each particular commodity or interest.

If the farm relief act shall be the means of causing the farmers of the country to rally unite for their own protection and benefit it will be a long step toward a solution of the farm problem.

FIRST FLAG IN BATTLE

The question of when and where the American flag with stars and stripes was first carried in battle has been the subject of much controversy among historians ever since the Revolution. In fact, in spite of the Betsey Ross tradition, the origin of the flag is uncertain.

It is a matter of history that the flag of 13 stars and 13 stripes was adopted by Congress on June 14, 1777, but the exact date on which the first flag was made is unknown.

As to the flag's first display in battle, there have been conflicting claims. Until recently it was generally supposed that this occurred at Fort Schuyler, N. Y., on August 3, 1777, when that post was beseiged by the British. The flag used on that occasion was said to have been made from a blue jacket and a soldier's wife's red petticoat, with stars cut from a white shirt.

War department officials who have recently made researches with a view to clearing up the matter now declare that the evidence favors Coochs Bridge, Del., as the place where the first battle flag with stars and stripes was unfurled. This was during a skirmish which preceded the battle of Brandywine, and occurred on September 3, 1777.

All of which is interesting though not of great importance. The important thing is that the Stars and Stripes still floats as the symbol of freedom and equality of opportunity. The fact that the principles for which it stands are sometimes violated does not materially detract from its sublime symbolism.

The sound of an auto horn makes a pedestrian's nerves jumpy, when it ought to make his legs that way.

PEACE OUTLOOK BETTER

Even the most skeptical critic of the Kellogg Peace Pact must admit that recent events have strongly supported the view that it is to be an effective instrumentality for world peace.

Without the moral restraints imposed by the pact, there is little doubt that China and Russia would be at war at this moment. While all danger of conflict is not past, there is reason to believe that a settlement of the Manchurian question may be reached without war.

The recent declarations of Great Britain and the United States that a new basis for real limitation of naval armaments will be immediately sought is another encouraging sign.

While the Young reparations plan has not satisfied all the nations concerned, it has been accepted as the best compromise that could be reached, and apparently reparations as a possible source of war has been eliminated.

No one can tell, of course, what the coming months and years may bring forth, but it can not be denied that the outlook for peace has been materially improved as a result of the peace pact and other international agreements which have been entered into during the last few years.

A FRIEND OF BOYHOOD

How the Boy Scout movement was first brought to America is recalled by the recent death of William D. Boyce, a well known Chicago publisher, who was the original incorporator of the movement in the United States.

While visiting London about twenty years ago, Mr. Boyce became confused in a fog and lost his way. Meeting a boy on the street, he asked to be directed to his hotel, and the boy personally escorted him there. When Boyce offered him a tip, it was refused with thanks, the lad saying: "I am a Boy Scout."

This so aroused Boyce's interest that he inquired about the organization and conferred with leaders of the movement in London, with the result that he determined to promote a similar organization in America, which he did. Thus four million American boys have had the benefit of Scout training largely as a result of the "good turn" of an unknown Boy Scout.

Similar movements had been originated by Daniel Carter Beard and Ernest Thompson Seton in the United States, all finally being merged in the Boy Scouts of America, which William D. Boyce materially aided in financing for several years.

He was a true friend of boyhood, and his memory will be cherished by the great organization in whose development he took such a conspicuous part.

ON THE JOB AT 100

Most persons would feel inclined to take a day off for celebration upon reaching the century mark, but not so John R. Voorhis of New York, president of the city board of elections, who recently spent his 100th birthday attending to the duties of his office as usual.

Mr Voorhis is described by M. E. Tracy in a recent article as "a Tammanyite who quotes scripture; a politician who believes in the old-fashioned virtues; a product of the mid-Victorian era who deplores some things of the present but refuses to be discouraged by them; a centenarian who has no pet prescription for longevity."

As to personal habits, Mr. Voorhis prefers to be governed by common sense as he goes along, rather than by fixed rules. He did quit smoking when he was 97 and says he doesn't take anything in the way of alcoholic beverages as often as once a week. Each night he reviews what he has done during the day, with a view to future avoidance of any mistakes he has made.

Mr. Voorhis didn't express any particular future ambitions on his 100th birthday, but whatever else he may have in mind it is probable that the re-election of Mayor Jimmy Walker is giving him most concern just now.

PUBLIC UTILITY STOCKS

So far as the general public is concerned, it does not appear that the investigation of public utilities which has been going on for a year and a half has had much effect.

In a recent financial article in the New York American, one of the principal newspaper antagonists of the utilities, it was declared that in the opinion of several hundred business executives, who had responded to a questionnaire, public utility stocks were the favorites among the investing public, General Electric perhaps the favorite individual company, with Electric Bond & Share, Westinghouse and United Gas Improvement standing near the top of the list.

By groups the favorite stocks were listed in the order of their preference as follows: Public utilities, railroads, steel, electrical equipment, oils and motors.

In view of the recent unprecedented trend of business and industry toward mergers, it is natural that investors should seek the securities of the larger and better managed corporation. The investor may criticise these mergers, but when he puts his own money into something he wants it to be an enterprise as big and successful as possible.

HUMBLE BEGINNING

It is a strange human trait that in later life a man often boasts of the very things of which he was somewhat ashamed in his youth. Successful men point with pride to their humble origins, to their early struggles and the menial nature of their first employment.

And it is a just cause for pride to have overcome such obstacles through one's own energy and determination. There is no doubt that the man who has had to fight his way from the bottom is generally better off, hard as it may have seemed to him while undergoing the experience.

It is equally true that many men fail because of a false pride which cause them to shrink from humble tasks which might lead to ultimate success. Henry Ford was a machinist's helper, Thomas A. Edison was a newsboy, John D. Rockefeller was a clerk, and neither had any early education to speak of. They and thousands of others succeeded because they were not ashamed to toil with their hands until something better presented itself.

Not every boy can become a Ford, an Edison, or a Rockefeller, but every one who is not afraid or ashamed to work can make an honorable and useful place for himself, and he doesn't have to begin in a "white collar" job, either.

QUALITY VS. QUANTITY

In anticipation of census-taking next year many cities and towns are annexing territory and in other ways planning to make as good a showing as possible when noses are counted by Uncle Sam's agents.

Long and loud will be the shouts of joy in every town which the census shows has passed a rival neighbor in population. Wails of discontent, charges of padding the returns and what not will be heard from towns shown to have been left behind.

All of which, in most cases, is much ado about nothing. While growth in population frequently does indicate a prosperous community, other factors are far more important. What kind of citizens a town has is of greater significance than how many. If numbers alone made a good community, we should all want to live in New York or one of the other large cities. But taken as a whole, it is probable that the people of the smaller towns and even of the rural districts are happier than the masses crowded for elbow room in the congested metropolitan centers.

The town to be envied is the one where the people have a commuity spirit, are neighborly, intellectually alert, devoted to the better things of life and, as far as may be, mind their own business. As to material prosperity, it should not be judged by the number of millionaires a town has, but by whether everyone who wants to work has a job.

Colma News Notes

Mr. and Mrs. L. Varni moved the first part of this week to their pretty new home on Irvington street, Daly City.

Mr. ad Mrs. Lester Langford will leave this Saturday for a two weeks vacation to be spent motoring in the southern part of the state.

Mrs. Margaret Steele and family, of Winchester street, Daly City, retuurned home last Sunday after spending two weeks at the Russian river.

Miss Mary Zipser, daughter of Mrs. Mary Zipser, will resume her studies Monday at the State Teachers' College, San Francisco. Miss Mary will be ready to teach in another year.

The annual picnic given by the F. C. I. Sezione San Vincenzo De Paoli No. 19 will be held Sunday, August 25, at Lovchen Garden. Johnny Dell's accordian band will furnish the music for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Picetti, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garibaldi, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kusper, Mr. R. Schneider and Miss I. Watson motored to Middletown on Sunday of last week, where they spent an interesting day visiting the Acme mines.

The five children of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Callan, Mary, Carter, Helen, Martha and Junior, have had their tonsils removed during the past two weeks at the Children's hospital, San Francisco. Latest reports are that they are all doing nicely.

Miss Mary Belli, popular bookkeeper at the South San Francisco hsopital, leaves this Friday for Los Angeles, where she will spend her vacation.

Paul Passaglia and Buster Foppiano were guests last Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mal Tacchi, of Muller avenue, South San Francisco.

Little Irene Garibaldi, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garibaldi, met with a painful accident, burning the palms of both hands, Thursday of last week, when she put them against the gas oven of her mother's stove.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Riccomi had their little son christened last Sunday at Holy Angels' church, Rev. Father John Smith officiating, the baby being named George Louis Riccomi. After the services a family dinner was held at their home in honor of their son.

Dr. Dolly, wife and family are visiting at South San Francisco after an absence of four years, many affairs being given in their honor. Dr. Dolly, a noted chest specialist of Los Angeles, where he has an extensive practice, recently returned from Germany. His many friends in this vicinity have been very happy to greet him.

AIexander Levison, San Francisco printer, was named defendant in a suit for $30,000 damages filed in Redwood City last Saturday by E. A. Weisenburger, of Lawndale. Weisenburger alleges that his wife died of injuries received a year ago last May, when their automobile was struck by the car driven by Levison's chauffeur, Robert Worlege, and in which Levison was a passenger. The accident occurred in Burlingame.

The fast and clever dog, Thomas L. Hickey, owned by P. Olmo, is making quite a record for himself, and is fast becoming one of the most popular racing dogs in this section. Thomas L. Hickey made a great winning race at Half Moon Bay last Sunday, and was clearly the favorite of the fans. He has recently won three stakes, competing with the fastest dogs in this section, threby increasing his popularity.

Italio Galli, aged 37, arrested by San Francisco police for annoying a young woman on a Colma bound street car, was taken by Constable S. A. Landini and Sheriff J. J. McGrath to the South San Francisco hospital, where Miss Geraldine Silicani, the victim of a mysterious stabbing, declared positively he was not her attacker. Miss Slicani, who received a blood transfusion several days ago, is reported slightly improved. Galli is being held by the San Francisco police on a stautory charge.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Lloyd entertained a number of friends last Sunday evening at their home in honor of the fifth anniversary of their wedding. The dining room and table were beautifully decorated in pink and blue crepe paper and pink carnations. Two huge cakes, one a wedding cake and the other a bride's cake, were very attractive. The bride and groom of five years ago received many lovely wooden gifts. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Merlo and daughter Juanita, Mr. and Mrs. D. Gotelli, Miss Lena Gotelli, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cremolini, Mr. Alfred Cremolini, Mrs. Theresa Capuno, Mr. and Mrs. Mario Letera and son Bobbie, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Cusuck, Barbara Cusuck, Barbara Cusuck and Neil Cusuck.

Miss Dorothy Dennis was guest of honor last Wednesday evening at a surprise miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mrs. George Volkman. The dining room and table were beautifuully decorated in pastel shades. A parasol decorated with delphinias and ribbon streamers occupied the center of the table. Miss Dennis received many lovely gifts. The guests were Mrs. Jack Dennis, Mrs. Ida Dixon, Mrs. P. Peterson, Mrs. Geo. Wright, Mrs. Al Volkman, Mrs. R. Bertetta, Mrs. R. Pighetti, Mrs. F. Volkman, Mrs. E. Mooney, Mrs. D. Garibaldi, Mrs. F. Garibaldi, Mrs. J. Garibaldi, Mrs. H. Volkman, Mrs. L. Martinelli, Mrs. F. Volkman, Miss Eva Torre, Miss Rose Torre and Miss Myrtle Durban.

James L. Casey, delegate of the Colma Fier Department to the convention of the California State Firemen's Association, held the week of August 6, at Fullerton, Cal., returned home last week very much impressed with the wonderful work being accomplished by this association. Governor C. C. Young made the opening address, and Secretary of State Frank Jordan was one of the principal speakers. The eyes of this state have been turned toward this association on account of its rapid growth and the good work being done in regard to legislation, such as making better conditions for firemen. It was through the efforts of this association that the state legislatuure passed at its last session the state pension bill for firemen. A strong battle was put up by the delegates from San Mateo county to hold the next convention in their county, San Francisco winning out by a few votes. The delegates and their families were royally entertained while in Fullerton. A barbecue was held in the beautifuul Orange county park for over 800 guests. The last evening there was spent at the beautiful new Fox Theatre. During the sessions the ladies were entertained with sight seeing trips, boat rides and luncheons. The following cities from San Mateo county were represented: Colma, Daly City, Burlingame, San Bruno, Bayshore, San Carlos and Lomita Park.

TWO INJURED IN CRASH OF AUTOS NEAR DALY CITY

Robert Schneider, of 1149 Twelfth street, San Francisco, and Ernest Stewart, of 1273 Hayes street, San Francisco, were given first aid treatment in San Mateo early Monday, for injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Daly City. Schneider suffered a broken leg and Stewart was treated for body bruises. Both were later sent to Mt. Zion hospital, San Francisco, after treatment at Mills Memorial hospital.

As the result of an automobile accident Monday night on the El Camino Real near Colma, Mrs. Helen Flattery is under medical care for cuts and bruises.

SPARKLING HITS AT DALY CITY THEATRE

Whoops, my dear; ain't we got fun. Just for that you had better see Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle in a sparkling bit of Broadway life in "Beau Broadway," at the Daly City Theatre this Saturday, where they will appear together with Tom Tyler and Frankie Darro in "Gun Law," a big thrill story. At the matinee there will be special featurettes for the kiddies, along with the candy, and silver for the ladies at the night performances.

What is the Spirit of Youth? Before you answer, don't let a bit of sparkling entertainment as contained in "Spirit of Youth," with Larry Kent and Dorothy Sebastian, playing Sunday at the Daly City Theatre, slip by without seeing it. Snooky White, the Look-Out Kid, will be on the stage in a delightful offering with his Merry Comedians.

Victor Varconi and Dorothy Reviere are the stars of "Sinners Parade," a big Columbia special that will hold the screen Monday at the Daly City. Better see it. It's thrilling, sensational and highly dramatic.

American's greatest screen lover, John Gilbert, with Mary Nolan, will be the stars of "Desert Nights," a big thrill story, at the Daly City Theatre for Tuesday only.

William Boyd in "The Leatherneck" will be the Wednesday attraction, and for Thursday, Bert Lytel in "The Lone Wolf's Daughter."

Sam and his Country Store will be the Friday special, with "Silks and Saddles," a big heart drama with Marion Nixon and Dick Walling on the screen.

No trace has been found of Thelma Sadler, aged 15, of San Francisco, who disappeared from an exclusive girls' camp at Emerald lake last Saturday morning.

SUMMONS TO ESTABLISH TITLE

Action No. 16132.

In the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of San Mateo.

C. G. Blake, Plaintiff, vs. All persons claiming any interest in, or lien upon, the real property herein described or any part thereof, Defendants.

The People of the State of California: To all persons claiming any interest in, or lien upon, the real property herein described or any part thereof, defendants, greeting:

You are hereby required to appear and answer to the complaint of C. G. Blake, plaintiff, filed with the Clerk of the above entitled Court and County, within three months after the first publication of this Summons, and to set forth what interest or lien, if any, you have in or upon that certain real property or any part thereof, situated in the County of San Mateo, State of California, particularly described as follows:

All that certain parcel of land situate in the City of Burlingame, County of San Mateo, particularly described as follows:

Lot "O" in Block 11 as designated on the map entitled "Map No. 2 of The Property of The Burlingame Land Co., San Mateo County, Cal.," which map was filed in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, on February 20, 1905, in Liber "D" of Maps at page 38 and a copy entered in Liber 3 of Maps at page 55.

And you are hereby notified that, unless you so appear and answer, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint, to-wit: That it be adjudged that the plaintiff is the owner of said property in fee simple absolute; that his title to said property be established and quieted; that the Court ascertain and determine all estates, rights, titles, interests and claims in and to said property, and every part thereof, whether the same be legal or equitable, present or future, vested or contingent, and whether the same consists of mortgages or liens of any description; that plaintiff recover his costs herein and have such other relief as may be meet in the premises.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court this 8th day of August, A. D. 1929.

He was turning to go when, suddenly, he stopped.

"Oh, by the way, I saw a friend of yours before I left. No need to mention names, you lucky dog. When's the big thing coming off? Well, I must congratulate you again. She looks sweeter than ever. By-by."

He was off, leaving a very sinister impression on my mind. In his parting smile there was a trace of mockery that gravely disquieted me. I had thought much of Berna during the past few months, but as the gold fever took hold of me I put her more and more from my mind. I told myself that all this struggle was for her. In the thought that she was safe I calmed all anxious fear. Yet at Locasto's words all my old longing and heartache vehemently resurged.

In spite of myself, I was the prey of a growing uneasiness. I began to worry, so that I knew only a trip in to Dawson would satisfy me. Accordingly, I hired a big Swede to take my place at the shovel, and set out once more on the trail for town.

My strange, formless fears for Berna were soon set at rest. She was awaiting me. She looked better than I had ever seen her, and she welcomed me with an eager delight that kindled me to rapture.

We crossed the Yukon to the green glades of North Dawson, and there, on a little rise, we sat down, side by side. Never was lad so happy as I. I spoke but little, for love's silences are sweeter than all words. From time to time she would give me a glance so full of trust and love that my heart would leap to her, and wave on wave of passionate tenderness come sweeping over me.

"Yes," she was saying, "doesn't it seem as if we were dreaming? You know, I always thought it was a dream, and now it's coming true. You'll take me away from this place, won't you, boy?—far, far away. I'll tell you now, dear, I've borne it all for your sake, but I don't think I could bear it any longer. I don't know what I'd have done if it hadn't been for the rough miners. They've been so kind to me. When they saw I was straight and honest they couldn't be good enough."

She looked at me archly.

"And you know, I've had ever so many offers of marriage, from honest, rough, kindly men—and I've refused them ever so gracefully."

"Has Locasto ever made any more overtures?"

Her face grew grave.

"Yes, about a month ago he besieged me, gave me no rest, made all kinds of proposals and promises. He wanted to divorce his 'outside' wife and marry me. He wanted to settle a hundred thousand dollars on me. Then, when he saw it was no use, he turned round and begged me to let him be my friend. He spoke so nicely of you. He said he would help us in any way he could. He's everything that's kind to me now. He can't do enough for me. Yet, somehow, I don't trust him."

"Well, my precious," I assured her, "all danger, doubt, despair, will soon be over. I'll take you away from it all, soon. We'll go to my home, to Garry, to mother. They will love you as I love you."

"I'm sure I will love them. What you have told me of them makes them seem very real to me. Will you not be ashamed of me?"

"I will be proud, proud of you, my girl. On the first day of June, beloved, I will come to you, and we will be made man and wife. You will be waiting for me, will you not?"

"Yes, yes, waiting ever so eagerly, my lover."

I kissed her passionately, and we held each other tightly for a moment. I saw come into her eyes that look which comes but once into the eyes of a maid, that look of ineffable self-surrender, of passionate abandonment.

She rested her head on my shoulder; her lips lay on mine, and they moved faintly.

"Yes, lover, yes, the first of June. Don't fail me, honey, don't fail me."

We parted, buoyant with hope, in an ecstasy of joy.

I got back to the claim. Everything was going merrily, but I felt little desire to resume my toil. I was strangely wearied, worn out somehow. Yet I took up my shovel again with a body that rebelled in every tissue. Never had I felt like this before. Something was wrong with me. I was weak. At night I sweated greatly. I cared not to eat.

"Well," said the Prodigal one day, "it's all over but the shouting. From my calculations we've cleaned up two hundred and six thousand dollars. That's a hundred and three between us four. It's cost us about three to get out the stuff; so there will be, roughly speaking, about twenty-five thousand for each of us."

How jubilant every one was looking—every one but me. Somehow I felt as if money didn't matter just then, for I was sick, sick.

"Why, what's the matter?" said the Prodigal, staring at me curiously. "You look like a ghost."

"I feel like one, too," I answered. "I'm afraid I'm in for a bad spell. I want to lie down awhile, boys . . . I'm tired. . . . The first of June. I've got a date on the first of June. I must keep it, I must. . . . Don't let me sleep too long, boys. I mustn't fail. It's a matter of life and death. The first of June. . . ."

Alas, on the first of June I lay in the hospital, raving and tossing in the clutches of typhoid fever.

CHAPTER X

I was lying in bed, and a heavy weight was pressing on me, so that, in spite of my struggles, I could not move. I was hot, insufferably hot. The blood ran boiling through my veins. My flesh was burning up. My brain would not work. It was all cobwebs, murky and stale as a charnel house. Then came the dreams.

There was always Berna. Through a mass of grimacing, greed-contorted faces gradually there formed and lingered her sweet and pensive one. I struggled to go to her. She was waiting for me, breaking her heart at my delay. Then the fever, the ravings, the wild threshing of my pillow, all passed away, and I was left limp, weak, helpless, resigned to my fate.

I was on the sunny slope of convalescence. As I turned and twisted on my narrow cot it seemed as if the time would never pass. All I wanted was to get better fast, and to get out again. Then, I thought, I would marry Berna and go "Outside." I was sick of the country, of everything.

I was lying thinking over these things, when I became aware that the man in the cot to the right was trying to attract my attention. He had been brought in that very morning, said to have been kicked by a horse. He was in great pain, but quite conscious, and he was making stealthy motions to me.

"Say, mate," he said, "I piped you off soon's I set me lamps on you. Don't youse know me?"

I looked at the bandaged face wonderingly. Then, with a great start, I saw it was the Worm.

"'Tain't no horse done me up," he said in a hoarse whisper; "'twas a man. You know de man, de worst devil in all Alaska, Black Jack. Bad luck to him! He knocked me down and give me de leather. But I'm goin' to get even some day. I'm just laying for him."

The man's eyes glittered vengefully between the white bandages.

"'Twas all on account of de little girl he done it. You know de girl I mean. Black Jack's dead stuck on her, an' de furder she stands him off de more set he is to get her. Youse don't know dat man."

"Tell me what's the matter, for Heaven's sake."

"Well, when youse didn't come, de little girl she got worried. I used to be doin' chores round de restaurant, an' she asks me to take a note up to you. So I said I would. But I got on a drunk dat day, an' for a week after I didn't draw a sober breath. When I gets around again I told her I'd seen you an' given you de note an' you was comin' in right away."

"Heaven forgive you for that."

"Yep, dat's what I say now. But it's all too late. Well, a week went on an' you never showed up, an meantime Locasto was pesterin' her cruel. She got mighty peaked like, pale as a ghost, an' I could see she cried most all her nights. Den she gives me anudder note. I said she could lay on me dis time. I was de hurry-up kid' an' I starts off. But Black Jack must have cottoned on, for he meets me back of de town an' taxes me wid takin' a message. Den he sets on me like a wild beast an' does me up good and proper. But I'll fix him yet."

"Where are the notes?" I cried.

"In de pocket of me coat. Tell de nurse to fetch in me clothes, an' I'll give dem to youse."

The nurse brought the clothes. There were the notes, folded very small, and written in pencil. There was a strange faintness at my heart, and my fingers trembled as I opened them. Fear, fear was clutching me, compressing me in an agonizing grip.

Here was the first.

"My Darling Boy: Why didn't you come? I was all ready for you. Has anything happened to you, dear? For Heaven's sake write or send a message. I can't bear the suspense.

"Your loving
"Berna."

Blankly, dully, almost mechanically, I read the second.

"Oh, come, my dear, at once. I'm in serious danger. He's grown desperate. Swears if he can't get me by fair means he'll have me by foul. I'm terribly afraid. Why have you failed me? Oh, my darling, have pity on your poor little girl. Come quickly before it is too late."

It was unsigned.

Heavens! I must go to her at once. I was well enough. I was all right again. Why would they not let me go to her? I was strong, so strong now.

Ha! there were the Worm's clothes. It was after midnight. The nurse had just finished her rounds. All was quiet in the ward.

Dizzily I rose and slipped into the frayed and greasy garments. There were the hospital slippers. I must wear them. Never mind a hat.

I was out in the street. I shuffled along, and people stared at me, but no one delayed me. I was at the restaurant now. She wasn't there. Ah! the cabin on the hill.

I was weaker than I had thought. Many times I stumbled, cutting myself on the sharp boulders. The way seemed endless, yet stumbling, staggering on, there was the cabin at last.

On my hands and knees, I crawled to the door and hammered with clenched fists. There was silence within, then an agitated movement. I knocked again. Was the door ever going to be opened? At last it swung inward, with a suddenness that precipitated me inside the room.

The madam was standing over me where I had fallen. At sight of me she screamed. Surprise, fear, rage, struggled for mastery on her face. "It's him," she cried, "him."

"Berna," I gasped hoarsely. "Where is she? I want Berna. What are you doing to her, you devils? Give her to me. She's mine, my promised bride. Let me go to her, I say."

All at once I realized that the air was heavy with a strange odor, the odor of chloroform. Frenzied with fear, I rushed forward.

Then the Amazon roused herself. With a cry of rage she struck me. Savagely both of them came for me. I struggled, I fought; but, weak as I was, they carried me before them and threw me from the door. I heard the lock shoot; I was outside; I was impotent. Yet behind those log walls. . . . Oh, it was horrible! Could such things be in God's world? And I could do nothing.

I was strong once more. I ran round to the back of the cabin. She was in there, I knew. I rushed at the window and threw myself against it. Crash! I burst through both sheets of glass. I was cruelly cut, bleeding in a dozen places, yet I was half into the room. There, in the dirty, drab light, I saw a face, the fiendish, rage-distorted face of Locasto.

He turned at the crash. With a curse he came at me. Then, as I hung half in, half out of the window, he clutched me by the throat. Using all his strength, he raised me further into the room, then he hurled me ruthlessly out onto the rocks outside.

I rose, reeling, covered with blood, blind, sick, speechless. Weakly I staggered to the window. My strength was leaving me. I felt the world go blank. I swayed; I clutched at the walls; I fell.

I had lost!

• • • • • • • •

"No, no, I'm all right. Really I am. Please leave me alone. You want me to laugh? Ha! Ha! There! Is that all right now?"

"No, it isn't all right. It's very far from all right, my boy."

It was in the big cabin on Gold hill, and the Prodigal was addressing me. He went on:

"Now, look here, kid. I'm giving you a straight line of talk. Ever since the start I've taken a strong notion to you. We've been in tight places together; we've been stacked up against hard times together: and now I'll be gol-darned if I'm going to stand by and see you go downhill, while the devil oils the bearings."

"Oh, I'm all right," I protested.

"Yes, you're all right," he echoed grimly. "In an impersonation of an 'all-right' man it's the hook for yours. I've seen 'all-right' men like you hitting the hurry trail for the boneyard before now. You've lost your grip, my boy. You don't care whether school keeps or not. In fact, if it wasn't for your folks, you'd as lief take a short cut across the Great Divide."

"It's all very well for you to preach," I said; "you forget I've been a pretty sick man."

"That's no nursemaid's dream. You almost cashed in. Typhoid's a serious proposition at the best; but when you take a crazy streak on top of it, make a midnight getaway from the sick-ward and land up on the Slide looking as if you'd been run through a thrashing machine, well, you're sure letting death get a short option on you. And you gave up. You didn't want to fight. You shirked, but your youth and constitution fought for you. They were a great team, and they pulled you through. And you weren't one bit grateful—seemed to think they had no business to butt in."

"My hurts are more than physical."

"Yes, I know; there was that girl. As I camped there by your bedside listening to your ravings, and getting a strangle-hold on you when you took it into your head to get funny, you blabbed out the whole yarn. Oh, sonny, why didn't you tell your uncle? Why didn't you put me wise? I could have given you the right steer. But you kept mum as a mummy. Wouldn't even tell your old pard. Now you've lost her."

"Yes, I've lost her."

"Did you ever see her after you came out of the hospital?"

"Once, once only. It was the first day. I dragged along wearily, leaning on a stick. I was thinking of her, thinking, thinking always. Then suddenly she was before me. She looked like a ghost, poor little thing."

"Yes, what did she say?"

"Say! she said nothing. She just looked at me. Her face was cold as ice. She looked at me as if she wanted to pity me. Then into her eyes there came a shadow of bitterness, of bitterness and despair such as might gloom the eyes of a lost soul. It unnerved me. Then she drew a great, gasping breath, and turning on her heel she was gone."

"She cut you?"

"Yes, cut me dead, old fellow. And my only thought was of love for her, eternal love. But I'll never forget the look on her face as she turned away. It was as if I had lashed her with a whip. My God!"

"And you've never see her since?"

"No, never. That was enough, wasn't it? I went back to the ward; then, in a little, I came on here. My body was living, but my heart was dead. It will never live again."

"Oh, rot! You mustn't let the thing down you like that. It's going to kill you in the end. Buck up! Be a man! If you don't care to live for yourself, live for others. Anyway, it's likely all for the best. Maybe love had you locoed. Maybe she wasn't really good. See now how she lives openly with Locasto."

I rose and looked at him, conscious that my face was all twisted with the pain of the thought.

"Look here," I said, "never did God put the breath of life into a better girl. There's been foul play. I know that girl better than anyone in the world, and if every living being were to tell me she wasn't good I would tell them they lied, they lied. I would burn at the stake upholding that girl."

He looked at me thoughtfully.

"I say, old man, do you ever hear from your old lady?"

"Every mail."

"Why not go back? That's your proper play; go back to your mother. She wants you. You're pretty well heeled now. You'll be comfortable; you'll devote yourself to the old lady; you'll be happy again. I hate to see you go. I'm really sorry to lose you; but it's your only salvation, so go, go!"

Never had I thought of it before. Home! how sweet the word seemed. Mother! yes, mother would comfort me as no one else could. She would understand. Mother and Garry! A sudden craving came over me to see them again. Home! that was the solution of it all. Ah me! I would go home.

"Yes," I said, "I can't go too soon; I'll start tomorrow."

So I rose and proceeded to gather together my few belongings. In the early morning I would start out.

Pathos in Passing of Old-Time Family Album

The London Sunday Times notes the wane of ancestor worship (western type):

"Ancestor worship is, apparently, on the wane. A French writer has pointed out that the custom of keeping a family album is no longer popular, and draws from the fact a moral concerning the decay in pride of race. There is, indeed, a certain pathos in the decline of the album of family portraits.

"There is pathos in it, and there is danger, too. How many a man, in years gone by, tottering on the verge of dipsomania, has been saved by the recollection of 'his sisters and his cousins, whom he reckoned up in dozens?' How many a man was rescued from the primrose path by the contemplation of Aunt Susan, awful in her shoulder-of-mutton sleeves? Today, alas! it is unlikely that the forger's hand would be stayed, the burglar's jimmy arrested, by the solemn thought that Great-Uncle Robert would never have acted thus."

Protect Silk Stockings

Friends of Youth

Both Alfred E. Smith and President Hoover are ardent believers in young men. To the latter a graybeard said in Paris during the World war:

"But young men are totally lacking in experience."

"Pooh," said Mr. Hoover. "What's the good, after all, of knowing what the weather was like day before yesterday?"

Roman Bridges Excite Wonder of Engineers

Among the notable bridge-building achievements of history are those constructed in the days of the Roman empire, says a writer in the Detroit News. Some of them still are in use, to the amazement of engineers, while others stand in broken majesty, the results of earthquakes or of purposed human destruction, for the delight and wonder of all beholders.

The two bridges, which lead from the Forum side of Rome to the island in the Tiber and on to the Trastevere or St. Peter's side, were built in the Second century, B. C. They have been used very much more than the Appian Way viaduct. They have stood there against frequent floods and constant usage these 2,000 years and they bid fair to keep on standing. The fine bridge across the Tiber, north of Rome, built to carry the Flaminian way northward, is another good example of a bridge more than 2,000 years old, which has seen steady and hard use and still appears as good as ever.

Term of Objurgation

"Rapscallion" is a form of rascallion, which comes from rascal, meaning a low, sneaking person. Rapscallion means about the same thing, although there is a tendency to use it in an affectionate sense, especially when speaking to a boisterous boy or a mischievous dog.

Courteous Spaniard

The palace of the Escorial, where the mortal remains of Spanish royal personages are laid to rest, is one of the gloomiest collections of buildings imaginable. Yet, says a writer in the London Daily Chronicle, I have a very pleasant recollection of it. I was walking from Segovia to Madrid, and wanted to see the Escorial on the way. I inquired from a countryman how to reach the palace. He at once offered to guide me, and did so for several miles. Then he utterly refused, with graceful Spanish courtesy, to take any reward. The heavy halls and chapels could not depress me after that display of kindly fellowship.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEES' SALE

WHEREAS, Nellie M. Hoover, wife of Alva O. Hoover (sometimes known as Alva D. Hoover) and Alva O. Hoover, her husband, hereinafter called grantors, did execute and deliver a certain deed of trust dated April 14, 1926, to Chas. G. Hinds and Paul Rieger, Jr., as trustees, which deed of trust was recorded in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, California, April 16, 1926, in Volume 222 of Official Records of San Mateo County, California, at page 326, and was executed and delivered to secure the payment of a certain promissory note of even date therewith executed by said grantors to Community Mortgage Loan & Thrift Co., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California, the lender under said deed of trust; and

WHEREAS, said Community Mortgage Loan & Thrift Co., by resolution of its board of directors duly and unanimously adopted at a meeting thereof duly held and convened at its office in the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, on the 29th day of October, 1928, appointed Chas G. Hinds and H. U. Roeding as trustees of the trusts expressed in said deed of trust instead of Chas. G. Hinds and Paul Rieger, Jr.; and

WHEREAS, a copy of said resolution, duly certified, was recorded in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, State of California, on the 8th day of November, 1928, in Volume 382 of Official Records, at page 233; and

WHEREAS, after the adoption of said resolution and pursuant to its terms, said Chas. G. Hinds and Paul Rieger, Jr., conveyed to said Chas. G. Hinds and H. U. Roeding, as joint tenants with right of survivorship, all the right, title and interest of said Chas. G. Hinds and Paul Rieger, Jr., in and to all that certain lot, piece or parcel of land described in said deed of trust first hereinabove referred to, and hereinafter in this notice fully described; and

WHEREAS, the deed so conveying said property was recorded in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, California, on November 8, 1928, in Volume 382 of Official Records, at page 234,

NOW, THEREFORE, in accordance with the terms and under the authority of said deed of trust, and in pursuance of a certain notice and demand of Community Mortgage Loan & Thrift Co., declaring that default has been made in the sum due under and by virtue of the terms of said promissory note, and requesting and authorizing said Chas. G. Hinds and H. U. Roeding, as such trustees, to sell the property described in said deed of trust and hereinafter described, for the purpose of satisfying said indebtedness of Nellie M. Hoover, wife of Alva O. Hoover (sometimes known as Alva D. Hoover) and Alva O. Hoover, her husband, said Chas. G. Hinds and H. U. Roeding, as such trustees, hereby give notice that default has been made in the payment of interest and principal of said promissory note and in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust; and that on April 19, 1929, at the request of said Community Mortgage Loan & Thrift Co., there was recorded in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Volume 415 of Official Records, at page 40, a notice of said default and of its election to sell and cause to be sold the real property described in said deed of trust to satisfy the obligation secured thereby; and that three months have elapsed since said recording, and that on Tuesday, the 3rd day of September, 1929, at the hour of 9:00 o'clock A. M. of said day, in front of the property hereinafter described, which is known and designated as No. 351 Rhine Street, in Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, said trustees will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash in lawful money of the United States, all that certain real property situate, lying and being in the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, bounded and described as follows:

Lot Numbered Five (5) in Block Lettered "T" as shown on that certain map entitled "Map Showing Subdivision of the Property of the Mission St. Land Co., situated in San Francisco and San Mateo Cos., Calif." filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, July 31, 1895, in Book "E" of Original Maps at page 73, and copied into Book 2 of Maps at page 73.

The Terms of Sale: Cash in lawful money of the United States of America.

Said Community Mortgage Loan & Thrift Co., or any other person may purchase at said sale.

county. We will go there later by a different road. Large ranches, and orchards, the town of Ukiah. Warm and pleasant. Let us stop at the Municipal camp grounds for the night. It is early yet; we will go over to Vichy Mineral Springs. Here we are. Come, let us walk up to the springs. How do you like that water? Tastes like soda water. It is soda water; with a number of other health-giving minerals. Try this other spring by the bath house. That is a bit different. Now for a mineral water bath. Did you like that? Makes one feel better, allright. The youngsters? Oh, they are down there having a mineral water swim in that big plunge. Now back to camp, supper, and to bed.

Up with the sun, breakfast beneath the trees, birds singing, yonder a woodpecker tapping away on a tree. Now we are on our way again. More mountains. Up and up. The farther we go, the more wild, rugged and beautiful the scenery. It would be nice if we could take pictures of these scenes in natural colors and take them back to our friends. If they knew what beauty was so close to them, there would be far more machines along the road, although there are many now. Willits and beautiful surrounding country. Yes, this is deer season and deer country. There goes a machine with a deer strapped to the running board and fender.

Back over the mountains toward Ukiah. That ranch on the right is the Ridgewood ranch, owned by a well known automobile distributor in San Francisco. It is the last word in ranches of its type. It's the kind that you read about and see in the movies, but seldom encounter in reality.

Two miles from Ukiah we turn off on the Lakeport road and we are seeing some more mountain country. Good roads, easy grades. Let us stop here and do a little fishing in Cold creek and in the Russian river. A few miles farther for a surprise. Here it is; this body of water, nestled down between the hills, is Blue Lake. Don't speak; look. See how the calm blue waters mirror the majestic mountains and stately pines. See that clump of silver-colored trees, set off by the background of green. Let us spend a few days here, where our wants will be taken care of by the La Trianon resort. We will rent a cabin and enjoy the boating, swimming and fishing. Five miles of water to play on and in, and the water so deep in places that the exact depth has not been ascertained. However, it is known to be very deep.

Next stop will be Saratoga Springs. Here we have quite an assortment of mineral water springs. Pick your ailment and drink from the spring recommended for its elimination.

Ponce de Leon explored the wrong coast for his Fountain of Youth. Families come to the mineral springs; they come again each year. This region has many such mineral springs and they all seem to have a regular patronage. This authority makes no special recommendation concerning these springs, other than the observation that where there is much smoke there must be some fire. The springs must do some people some good or they wouldn't come back.

A few miles farther down the road and we are at Clear Lake, a magnificent body of water thirty miles long by seven miles wide. Watch those splashes out there in the lake. Those are fish. The lake is literally full of fish. Sometimes they can be caught nearly as fast as you can drop a line in; sometimes they can't. The fish are there, however. You can see them. This is a good place to spend a week end, or even a full vacation, if one likes to fish and swim.

In conclusion, may this tend to bring to Northern California, in its small way, some measure of recognition. People EXIST elsewhere who might LIVE for a few weeks each year if they but knew what Northern California holds in store for them. Let's tell the world about it.

JOHN ALDEN.
EDWARD LORENTZEN.

WAS PLAYING SAFE

The late Wililam Rockefeller used to tell with delight a story illustrative of the financial genius of his famous brother, John.

"When John was a little fellow," he would begin, "a so-called Indian doctor visited our town with a cure-all. The doctor, to get started, took out a bright new silver dollar and said he would auction it off.

"'How much am I bid?' he said, 'for this bright silver dollar?'

"But the crowd was cautious, silent, suspicious. No bids were made.

"'How much am I bid?' shouted the Indian doctor. 'Come, come, gents! A nickel? A dime?'

"'I bid a nickel,' piped John D. Rockefeller at last.

"'The dollar is yours, boy,' said the doctor. 'Hand up your nickel.'

"'Take it out of the dollar,' piped little John D., 'and gimme 95 cents.'" Boston Globe.

She came home with her hat on one side and her clothes all crushed looking.

"Looks as though she'd been knocked down by a motorist," said one neighbor, sympathetically.

"Or picked up," said another, thoughtfully.

When the preacher called for women to stand up and promise to go home and mother their husbands only one little woman arose, and when he told her to go home at once and mother her husband, she said: "Mother him? I thought you said smother him."

STOCKTON FAIR AND HORSE SHOW

The greatest San Joaquin County Fair and Horse Show in history, to be held in Stockton, August 19, 20, 25, is assured this year. Greater numbers and better quality of entries prove this.

At the fair, which has taken first rank in California county festivals, there will be amusement features and the Modesto Boys' Band, night horse shows, horse races every afternoon on a fast track and displays of San Joaquin county's horticultural and agricultural products from delta and upland, manufactured products, and household arts and science exhibits.

For four years past the fair has been a big financial success attended by huge crowds, and its fame has spread abroad so that there are entries of registered and pedigreed livestock from points as far away as Jacksonville, Florida. Nearly all of the blooded horses shown at Palo Alto are entered at Stockton under the management of A. P. Fleming. Tweny thousand dollars is awarded in prizes and valuable trophies for the exhibits of harness and gaited horses, ponies and Shetlands, hunters and jumpers. The Stockton track is a fast one on which many unbroken state records have been made. Many of the record breaking horses are entered again this year. Exciting races and a relay race are scheduled for every afternoon of the meet. Purses aggregate $20,000 for racing events. San Joaquin County is not a one crop county. There are nearly a hundred different agricultural products. The world of farming knows the potato and beet record per acre and in quality of product has not yet been beaten, and delta land is known wherever farming is known. Grain, potatoes, live stock, poultry, fruit, vegetables, and beets, everything from the tiny onion to the grand-daddy of all pumpkins will be shown at the fair.

MANY NEW MOTORING LAWS NOW EFFECTIVE

California motorists will do well to look to their driving habits now that a number of vital changes in the state law governing ownership and operation of motor vehicles are effective. On Wednesday, August 14, the new motoring bills passed by the last legislature became law. Some of the more important changes include:

Brakes must be adequate to stop cars within a definite standard of distances at certain speeds; stops behind street cars required except at safety zones or where traffic signals are given now required and speed passing must be not more than ten miles per hour; stops at railroad grade crossing where signal is given now required; stops required for school buses taking on or discharging children; the right of way rule now is that vehicle outside of intersection must yield to one within intersection; plastering of windshields and windows with stickers, carrying of tires in front of radiator and unnecessary sounding of horn prohibited.

Failure to answer a citation will make impossible renewal of license or registration until charge has been disposed of; the new form of operator's license card will carry a record of conviction for certain more serious infractions of the law.

Motor vehicle owners will be liable for negligent operation of their cars by others driving with their knowledge or consent. Those who fail to pay damage judgments will have operator's license and certificate of registration cancelled until judgment is satisfied and assurance of ability to pay future judments has been given.

ELECTRICITY DEFINED

Electricity is something that starts the Lord knows where and ends in the same place. It is one thirty-sixth of a second faster on its feet than its nearest competitor, backyard gossip, and when turned loose in Europe will get to the United States five hours before it starts. Nobody knows exactly what it is, because it has never stood still long enough.

Electricity is sometimes known as science gone crazy with the heat, and if you can understand its maneuvers, you can do anything with it except open a can of peanut butter at a picnic.

Electricity was locked up in ignorance for centuries until Ben Franklin let it out with a pass key, and since then it has been pulling more new stunts than a pet monkey.

With it you can start a conversation or stop one permanently, cook dinner, curl your hair, press your trousers, blow up a battleship, run an automobile, or signal Mars, and many more things are being invented.—Utility Bulletin.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

WHEREAS, on the 26th day of May, 1927, Walter J. Burton and Louise Burton, his wife, executed a certain deed of trust, dated said day, and recorded on the second day of June, 1927, in the office of the county recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Volume 301 of Official Records, at page 395 et seq., in which deed of trust the said Walter J. Burton and Louise Burton are the grantors, Anglo-California Trust Company, a corporation organized under the laws of California, is the trustee, and Provident Mutual Loan Association, a corporation organized under said laws, is the beneficiary; and

WHEREAS, by said deed of trust said grantors granted to said trustee the real property hereinafter described, to secure the payment to said beneficiary of a certain promissory note dated and executed on said 26th day of May, 1927, by said grantors to said beneficiary for the principal sum of three thousand (3000) dollars, with interest thereon as therein provided, and also to secure the payment by said grantors to said beneficiary of all other sums, with interest thereon, as provided in said deed of trust; and

WHEREAS, said grantors made default in the payment of five (5) monthly loan installments of $36.40 each, under the terms of said promissory note, and said beneficiary, during such default and while it was still the owner and holder of said note, by resolution of its board of directors, duly adopted on the 16th day of April, 1929, declared that default in the payment of said five (5) monthly installments, pursuant to the terms of said note, had been made, and exercising its option, declared the entire unpaid principal and interest of said note to be then immediately due and payable, and demanded of said trustee that it sell the said real property in accordance with law and the provisions of said deed of trust, to satisfy the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust; and

WHEREAS on the first day of May, 1929, said beneficiary recorded in the office of the county recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Liber 413 of Official Records, at page 199, its notice of the said default and breach of said grantors and of its election to cause the said real property to be sold to satisfy the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust; and

WHEREAS the beneficiary has duly demanded and still demands of the undersigned trustee, that said trustee proceed to sell said property in order to accomplish the objects of the trusts set forth in said deed of trust;

NOW, THEREFORE, pursuant to said demand and in accordance with the terms and under the authority of said deed of trust, Anglo-California Trust Company, as such trustee, hereby gives notice that on Saturday, the seventh day of September, 1929, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day at the Broadway entrance to the County Court House of the County of San Mateo, situate on the northerly side of Broadway between Hamilton and Webster Streets, in the Town of Redwood City, County of San Mateo, State of California, it will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, in United States gold coin, all that certain real property situated in the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, and described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at a point on the northerly line of Risel Avenue distant thereon two hundred sixteen (216) feet six (6) inches easterly from the easterly line of Acton Street, formerly called Henrietta Street, and running thence easterly along said northerly line of Risel Avenue thirty (30) feet; thence northerly parallel with said easterly line of Acton Street ninety-four (94) feet, thence westerly parallel with said northerly line of Risel Avenue thirty (30) feet and thence southerly parallel with said easterly line of Acton Street ninety-four (94) feet to the point of beginning: Being part of lot numbered thirty-three (33) and an adjoining part of lot numbered thirty-four (34) in block numbered one (1) as shown on that certain map entitled "Homestead Realty Co's. Subdivision of Lots 140 to 153, (incl.) West End Homestead Association, Daly City, San Mateo County", filed in the office of the county recorder of San Mateo County July 31, 1912, in Book 8 of maps at page 17; together with the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging.

Terms of sale: Cash in United States gold coin, ten per cent. payable to the undersigned at the fall of the hammer, balance on delivery of deed, and, if not so paid, then the said ten per cent. to be forfeited and sale to be void.

The said beneficiary, its agents or assigns, or any other person, may bid and purchase at said sale.

Household Hint

To cure your wife of the antique craze, buy her a 1911 model automobile for her birthday.

The railroad company had won the case, so the superintendent stopped at the crossing where Sam was watchman to give him a five dollar bill, saying: "Sam, weren't you nervous when the judge called on you to testify that you waved your lantern that night to warn the automobile drivers that the train was coming?"

Sam: "Yes, suh, ah sure wuz nervous, boss. Ah was afraid dat old judge would ask me wuz dat lantern lit."

Drug Clerk: "What kind of tooth-brush do you want?"

Customer: "Give me a big one, boss. There are ten in my family."

Lady (to small boy accompanied by two dogs): "Have you licenses on both those dogs?"
